Nine tenths of fire waste is caused by carelessness.

The Fire Commissioner of New York City says that of the twelve thousand fires in New York City last year over six thousand of those of which the cause was traced were started by children playing with matches, by careless throwing away of lighted matches and cigar and cigarette stubs, to gas jets too close to window curtains.

THE WAY TO PREVENT FIRES IS TO BE CAREFUL.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

A Round-About Paper

"Germany and the Next War" by F. von Bernhardt, written before this 1914 war, should be read by all who wish to see the German view of this fearful war. I quote a few of the last sentences in Bernhardt's preface which shows the egotism of the writer and the turning upside down of the British notion of things in general.

"Our science, our literature, and the warlike achievements of our past have made me proudly conscious of belonging to a great civilized nation which in spite of all the weakness and mistakes of bygone days must and assuredly will, win a glorious future; and it is out of the fullness of my German heart that I have recorded my convictions. I believe that thus I shall most effectively rouse the national feeling in my readers' hearts and strengthen the national purpose."

As this preface was written in October, 1911, it is evident that the Germans were prepared for this 1914 war. All I say just now is that any nation which believes in its army and navy and goes around with a chip on its shoulder will get another nation to try to knock the chip off. Whether the culture and science of Germany is shown in its crushing of Belgium, I leave to wiser men than I am to decide. On page 179 in this Bernhardt book there is a sentence which I think is forgotten today, namely, the importance of personality, either in the field marshal or in the latest recruit of an army.

The Mexican muddle is still a muddle. Senator Lodge is perhaps right in saying, let Mexico alone or make her behave herself by making her one of our territories. By the way, Mr. Lodge has really learned something since 1912, a rare thing for a stand-patter—as the saying is in England that a Tory never learns anything and therefore never forgets anything. In 1912 Mr. Lodge said that the tariff did not make anything any dearer. All the stand-pat men said the same thing and sensible people did not vote for them and President Wilson was elected. Today Senator Lodge says that the tariff does make manufactured goods dearer and that we are all anxious to pay that price.

The elections last week left Governor Walsh almost alone in his glory, chiefly because he has what I would call a magnetic personality. Some people, even if you don't agree with them in politics, have a personal magnetism about them. In my opinion Mr. McCall lost the election by the want of that personality which F. von Bernhardt says is a necessary quality in peace and war, and that one man is just as good as another is simply nonsense.

The Irishman's opinion that in this country free from kings, dukes and lords, one man was much better than another holds true and will always do, simply because one man has the capacity of taking trouble while the other man will not, "so there ye are," as Dooley says.

I only ask three questions just now of my stand-pat friends who speak of all Democrats as ignorant demagogues. The price of sugar is just double what it was; did the Democrats do that when they reduced the sugar duties? Cotton is down from sixteen cents to ten cents per pound. Why so? just because our usual cotton buyers are buying horses and shoes and dynamite and guns. It will not do to blame the Democrats for this beastly, useless, wicked war.

Flax fibre is just about fifty per cent dearer than it was last year. Did our Democratic friends tread down the growing flax in the prime of its beauty, with its millions of blue flowers, or did they make it difficult to get Russian flax from the interior of the country to a shipping port and then lay mines to blow up the ships if they ventured out with a cargo? When our small-headed stand-pat friends learn to give even the devil his due, they will begin to see that majorities are not always in the right.

I am not a Roosevelt Progressive, but note well the world is not to go backwards like a crab or stand still and mark time. Let us agree to differ and respect other people.

IAN McDOUGALL

Pro-Suffrage Meeting

The lower town hall was filled with an interested audience on Wednesday afternoon when, under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Andover, Mrs. Lewis Johnson of Cambridge spoke on Suffrage for Women. After a short business meeting in which Mrs. James C. Sawyer, the president, made a few remarks, the speaker was introduced and she proved a most interesting as well as entertaining lecturer for the cause.

Mrs. Johnson answered in a convincing and enlightening way the questions often asked by those opposed to the furtherance of suffrage for women, showing that she was well posted, knew her state's and country's laws, and had given much study and thought to the matter in which she was in favor. As women have every desire for good government that the men have and have to be governed by the laws, they should have a voice in the making of these laws. If men can work better with the ballot, and no man would give up his privilege, then women can also work better.

She spoke of the "good government of Massachusetts" and said that while in many respects it was a good government, it failed in many things that women were especially interested in for the welfare of the state. Statistics were given regarding the saloon and the increase of drinking in Massachusetts within the past ten years. Woman as a rule is opposed to this state of things and could help to make a saloonless nation through her interest by voting against it. She, through her economic tastes, is as well fitted to spend the State's money as it is being done now.

A report was presented of the white slavery conditions and the inconsistent fines that were meted out to the miscreants who were brought to justice. Mrs. Johnson answered the question regarding the ignorant and vicious vote by saying that the women are not as ignorant as formerly and those who are still ignorant in educational ways, are, by their proximity to bad government, cognizant of its defects and have the desire for better laws. The vicious women, she said, do not care to proclaim their notoriety, but would rather hide themselves out of sight, and they are a negligible quantity.

The question of sentiment should not have a part in the suffrage argument some people claim, and Mrs. Johnson refuted this by claiming that if there were more of the mother spirit in the countries abroad, there would be less war, for mothers do not care to raise sons for cannon food.

The lecture ended by a strong appeal for favor of votes for women, claiming that although mistakes would assuredly be made, they would be no worse than those made before by men.

Mrs. Johnson is a very attractive woman and her quiet and engaging manner in presenting her plea for the cause was very convincing to her hearers.

SOCCER

Andover 3 Clans 0.

Andover defeated the Clans in a league game at Glen Forest last Saturday 3 goals to 0, before a large crowd. The locals had taken the first game at Andover 5 goals to 1 and the Clans were anxious for revenge, but failed. The feature of the game was the great goal by Joe Black who scored with a lightning shot from 35 yards out.

The Clans won the toss and played toward the road goal. Andover started and early made tracks for the Clans' goal, Smith being called upon to clear in short order. Andover again got dangerous and Page missed a nice opening. The Clans attacked and Deyermund had to handle a nice long shot from G. Rae. Law rounded W. Rae and was getting well inside the danger zone when Downs came across and checked him. A poor kick by W. Rae gave Law an opening which he failed to take advantage of, and Deyermund kept out another fine long drive from the younger Rae. McKeown conceded a corner but redeemed himself by clearing cleverly and at the other end Brown missed a good chance from a well placed free kick by G. Rae. Skea got away on the left and centred finely only to see Smith run out and stop Deyermund in the act of shooting. Law had a hard tussle single handed in the Andover goal but was outnumbered, and Moore had hard luck with a fine return shot. From a throw in near the corner flag Page was left uncovered but he missed the opportunity. Andover continued to have the best of the exchanges and at the end of the 35 minutes' play, Neil took advantage of a slight hesitation on McKeown's part and touched the ball past Smith. This reverse roused the Clans who attacked strongly after the restart, Brown again being at fault.

At the interval Andover led by one goal to nothing.

After a brief respite the Clans started in a very determined fashion and gave the Andover defenders an anxious time for quite a spell. Deyermund had all he could do to keep out a long drive from the left, pushing the ball out to Anderson, who missed a great chance of equalizing. Andover now took a turn, getting a fruitless corner, and Neil driving over from a good position. Andover obtained another corner which was well placed, Smith fisting away but before he could recover, Skea drove in again, the ball glancing off Rae into the net, after 17 minutes of the second half had elapsed. Even play followed for a while, until Downs fouled Hay just outside the penalty area. McKeown took the kick and placed to Anderson who was uncovered about six yards from the goal, but he missed the ball entirely. The Kilites fell away and were well beaten towards the close, Black finishing with a very weak shot after making a good opening for himself. Skea again got away and crossed to Page but Smith checked him in the nick of time. Black put in a couple of fine long drives which just missed the mark, but a little later he had better luck. Recovering the ball from a throw in fired in a drive from fully 35 yards' range which beat Smith all the way, and was one of the best goals seen around here for a long time. Soon after the final whistle sounded leaving Andover well deserved winners by three goals to nothing.

Teams:
Andover: J. Deyermund; Rae and Downs; Coleman, Black, Rennie, W. Deyermund, Neil, Page, Doig, Skea.

Clans: Smith; McKeown, and McCauley; Moore, G. Rae, and Emalie; Hay, McAllister, D. Anderson, Brown, Law.

An Old Time Abbot Student

The senior alumna of Abbot Academy, Miss Martha Ann Brown, died in Salem, November 7, at the age of ninety-four years and five months. Her parents lived in Andover for a few years and she was in the school in 1834—eighty years ago. A few months since, some interesting reminiscences of her's were written down by a friend and sent to the school.

A portion of the letter referring to Andover girls is here quoted.

"She remembers playing ball with Mary Ann and Abby Stuart, daughters of Professor Stuart, behind the pillars of Abbot hall. On the Sabbath question there were two classes then in Andover. One believed that the Sabbath began at sundown on Saturday, ending at sunset on Sunday, the other observed all of Sunday. One Sunday evening the Stuart girls came for her to play ball behind the pillars, but her mother forbade it, as against the Sabbath. . . . She remembers Miss Wardwell of Andover, a pupil [probably Dr. Wardwell's daughter, Sarah]. At the end of the year the girls exchanged cards with verses on them, as keepsakes. Her card from Miss W. contained these lines (from her memory):

"My gentle friend, may thy kind heart
A stranger be to sorrow's dart;
May blessings heavenly never cease
To crown thy days with radiant peace."

"Miss Martha was much animated in these recollections. She remembers good times at Andover, and recalls when the teacher and pupils took a ride to Indian Ridge."

Miss Brown was for many years a teacher in Salem, beginning to teach when only about fifteen years old.

The earliest alumna of the Academy is now Mrs. Louisa Packard Willis of Lawrence, who was in school 1834-35.

The senior alumnae living in Andover are Mrs. Hannah Phelps Guttererson and Mrs. Irene Rowley Draper, who were in school at the same time but the former entered a year earlier, in 1839. The school is very proud of its roll of early alumnae.

Abbot Academy Notes

Last Saturday afternoon the Bradford Academy basketball team played with Abbot in Andover. The game was a swift, vigorous one, but the Bradford team showed itself the stronger from the beginning and gained the victory. The score at the end of the first half was 9 to 5; at the end of the game 13 to 8. Almost the entire school came from Bradford to see the game. The Bradford Seniors were entertained at tea by the Abbot senior class, and the two teams had dinner together in Draper hall. The good spirit shown during the game strengthened the cordial feeling already existing between the schools.

The school had a most interesting and stimulating guest over last Sunday—Miss Annie Beecher Scoville, a woman of deep and broad interests. On Sunday evening she told of the needs and the aspirations of the Indians and the negroes, for whom she worked for a number of years at Hampton. Her faith in the power for good in these two races was contagious and inspiring.

Of quite a different sort but equally interesting was Miss Scoville's lecture on Monday evening. Her subject was "When Shakespeare Came to London," and most vividly did she bring before the minds of her hearers the England of Elizabeth, not only the life in London—the theatres, the gay houses on the Strand—but the quieter, hardly less active, life in the country castles. Her sketch of the history and of the customs of the time, especially the dress and the architecture, was illustrated by photographs from some very rare and valuable old prints, which Miss Scoville has owned for many years and of which the authorities in the British Museum are very envious. It is seldom that one can be so carried back in spirit to another age.

On Tuesday evening the girls of the first year class, under the guidance of Miss Wilkins, gave a little entertainment, consisting of shadow-pictures, a goblin dance and a wild-bird dance. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the rest of the school and $30.00 was made for the Red Cross Fund.

HUB-MARK RUBBERS

FOR MY LADY'S FEET

Sir Walter Raleigh gallantly threw down his cloak on the wet earth that the Queen might pass with her dainty slippers.

For the past sixty years the manufacturers of Hub-Mark rubber footwear have served the women of the land even more effectively. A courtier's cloak for a carpet is good as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough. Hub-Mark rubbers have done such gallant service for years that the service is common talk. They furnish the one perfect weather-proof carpet wherever you go. Hub-Mark rubbers for men, women, boys or girls are standard both in quality of material and excellence of workmanship.

The first cost of Hub-Mark rubbers is no more than that of other first quality goods and they wear much longer. Figure it out and then say "Hub-Mark" to the storeman when you buy rubbers.

These rubbers are manufactured by the Boston Rubber Shoe Company, Malden, Mass.

GERMANS' MOST DARING ATTACK

British Torpedo Boat Is Sunk
In the English Channel

LONDON GREATLY DISTURBED

Underwater Craft of Enemy Shows Patrol Can Be Successfully Dodged—Invaders Take Dixmude by Storm, Their Supreme Effort Causing Terrible Loss of Life During Week of Furious Fighting—Gains on Belgian Coast Claimed by Allies—Severest Fighting of War Reported on Eastern Front—German Losses to Date Estimated at 509,000 Men

Another raid by the German navy, almost at the gates of London, has again struck terror into the British heart.

A German submarine, penetrating below the mouth of the Thames in the straits of Dover, in one of the most daring feats yet attempted by the Kaiser's marine forces, sent a torpedo into the British torpedo gunboat Niger, which shortly afterwards foundered. All the officers and crew of the Niger are reported saved, two men having been severely and two slightly injured.

This is the furthest south that the naval dashes of the Germans from the North sea have yet ventured. In the excited state of the inhabitants of London it even opens up the possibility of a submarine poking its way up the channel of the Thames.

Close to the Coast

It was in the Downs, at the southern entrance of Straits of Dover, between Ramsgate and Dover, that the Niger was sunk.

The official report of the admiralty merely announces the occurrence and contains no details of the raid. It is feared in London that the German submarine responsible for the sinking of the Niger may be supported by a light cruiser squadron similar to that which raided the English coast off Yarmouth about two weeks ago. At that time a British submarine was sunk by a mine thrown out by one of the German cruisers and the fishing patrol cruiser Halcyon was crippled by the German fire.

The sinking of the Niger is the more terrifying as it goes to show how the German underwater craft can dodge the channel patrol fleet and nose its way to any point without being detected. What part of England's coast is safe?

On the Fighting Line

This naval disaster followed upon bad news from the fighting line in Belgium, to the effect that the Germans, in the course of their most desperate attempt to break through the allies' lines in Belgium and reach the coast, had again captured the town of Dixmude, on the right bank of the river Yser, as a climax to furious fighting which has been going on around the town for the past week.

This has proven to be a barren victory for the Germans, however. They have got into Dixmude, but they cannot get out of it. The British and French troops hold all lines of communication from the town, and repeatedly drove back attempts of the Germans to cross to the east bank of the river.

The carnage around Dixmude must have been terrible. The Germans admit that they took the place by storm, but the fact that they have not yet been able to make any advance beyond the town shows that the retreat of the allies was orderly.

Word comes from Liege by way of Amsterdam that 4000 severely wounded Germans arrived there from the Dixmude battlefield, which is only one indication of the awful cost of this supreme effort. No idea has yet been attainable of the losses of the British and French troops.

Gains Claimed by Allies

As an offset to the German successes at Dixmude the allies pushed their forces further up the Belgian coast, strong forces having captured the village of Lambertzyde, which is only ten miles south of Ostend. This would indicate a renewal of the old flanking movement of September, and will necessitate quick action by the Germans to prevent their right wing from again being evicted and their communications with Ostend cut off.

In addition to the capture of Lambertzyde the allies gained notable successes to the north of Soissons and to the west of Vally on the right bank of the Aisne. They also made progress on the right of the battle line, defeating a German detachment at Coincourt, two miles north of the forest of Perroy, and only a short distance from the Lorraine border.

In spite of the retirement from Dixmude the fact that Ypres is still strongly held by the British, in spite of extraordinarily severe attacks by the Germans, shows that no irreparable advantage has been lost in this region.

During Wednesday's operations in Belgium, the Germans say they took 2500 prisoners. New and fresh troops appear to have been called into the attack by the invaders. The question is whether these reinforcements will be able to continue driving the allies back.

On the east front, Berlin says that the severest fighting of the war is under way. The Russians have changed their tactics and are hurling tremendous blocks of infantry against the German positions along the Posen frontier. They seem to have received a check, now that they are on the point of entering Germany.

The usual crop of rumors and miscellaneous reports was harvested on the hundredth day of the war. Stories of Balkan activities were renewed, and both Bulgaria and Roumania were reported on the point of entering the conflict.

Berlin Looks For Mutiny

Berlin is looking for the Hindu troops in France to mutiny as soon as they learn of Turkey's action in declaring war against England. Petrograd asserts that Germany sought peace and that all overtures were spurned.

A story for which there is probably some foundation is that the Germans are now much in need of chloroform and ether, for which drugs they are largely dependent on the outside world.

Copenhagen sends a dispatch, probably correct, to the effect that German losses to date have been 509,000 men. Official dispatches from Berlin reported the losses up to a week ago as 440,000. Last week's losses were given by Berlin as 68,000.

GERMAN SPY IS SHOT

First Execution in Tower of London For Over Two Centuries

Carl H. Lody, aged 28, who was found guilty by a court martial of espionage, has been shot as a spy.

Lody when arrested claimed to be an American, but later confessed he was a German. He had lived in New York and Omaha. In the latter city he married the daughter of a brewer, who later divorced him.

Lody met his death in the Tower of London, after having been found guilty by a court martial on charges of having communicated with the enemy.

It is understood that Lody died bravely, refusing to the last to reveal the name of the superior officer from whom he received his instructions to spy on the British navy.

This was the first execution in the Tower of London since 1700. The scene of the execution was not far from the spot where Anne Boleyn and other persons famous in English history were put to death.

TURKEY GIVES WARNING

Will Kill Three British and French For Every Moslem Slain

The commander of the Turkish forces at Beirut, in a formal note addressed to the American consul general, and intended for the British and French governments, declares that for every Moslem killed in the bombardment of any open and unfortified port, three British and French subjects will be immediately executed.

The Turkish note says, moreover, that the commander declined to take the responsibility for any uprising against Christians which might ensue from such a bombardment.

The Turkish commander stated that for any Turkish property damaged compensation would be exacted by seizing property of British and French subjects in equal value.

REGARDLESS OF SACRIFICE

King George Tells Parliament England Must Win War

"England must triumph in the war with Germany regardless of any sacrifice that the gaining of final victory will demand," was the message conveyed to parliament by King George in his speech, which provided the feature when the house of lords and house of commons reconvened. "Throughout the empire," said the king, "there is a fixed determination to secure, whatever the sacrifice, the triumph of our arms and the vindication of our cause."

NO CHANGE IN PLAN

Germany Will Allow Supplies For Belgians to Go Through

Secretary Bryan announced that there had been no change in the plan originally approved by the German government for the transportation of relief supplies to Belgium.

A central committee has been recommended by Ambassador Page at London. Page, calling that the work of several American organizations was overlapping, advised that an all-American committee be appointed to work with the commission in London, of which Herbert Hoover is Chairman, and on which the American and Spanish ambassadors at London and the American and Spanish ministers in Belgium are serving.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR IN EUROPE

Turkish claims of victory over the Russians in the Trans-Caucasus and of invasion of Egypt to a distance of sixty miles from Port Said are characterized by the British official press bureau as inventions.

The protected cruisers Kagul and Pamiat Merkatoria of the Russian Black sea fleet bombarded the straits of the Bosphorus and the coal depots off Eregh, according to an announcement made at Constantinople.

Tsingtau has fallen, and German imperialism in the Far East has received its death blow.

While the fall of Tsingtau was not unexpected, in view of the fact that the town was reported several days ago as having been set on fire by shells from the fleet, there is nevertheless elation over the fact that the blockade which began last August, in the early days of the war, has at last resulted successfully, and that Germany is no longer a factor to be reckoned with on the Asiatic mainland.

The internment of the German cruiser Geier at Honolulu, after having been given limited time in which to make a decision, has released for service in the Pacific two Japanese warships which have been guarding the harbor ever since the Geier took refuge there more than a month ago.

A report reaching London from Wilhelmshaven shows that 286 men are missing from the crew of the German cruiser Yorck, which was sunk recently off the North sea coast of Germany as a result of accidental contact with a German mine.

Lockjaw has made its appearance among the battling armies of Europe, Surgeon General Blue of the United States public health service says. The allies are buying large quantities of tetanus serum to stop its ravages.

Provisions sent to Brussels by the American commission for the relief of Belgium already are supplying 400,000 meals daily, and plans are now complete for carrying on a similar work throughout that part of Belgium occupied by the Germans.

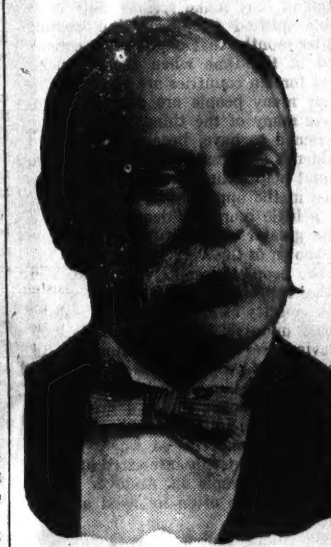

Hilaire Belloc in this week's "Land and Water," published in London, estimates the German casualties, including wounded and missing, in the first three months of the war, at 1,250,000 men. He arrives at this figure by scientific calculations.

President Wilson signed a proclamation declaring the neutrality of the United States in the conflict between Great Britain and Turkey.

BURNED ABOARD STEAMER

Loss of Eight Hundred Horses Consignees to French Port

Virtually all of the 800 horses on board the British steamship Rembrandt were burned to death when the ship took fire off the Virginia capes. The Rembrandt was bound from Baltimore for St. Nazaire, France, and the animals are understood to have been intended for the armies of the allies.

It is reported that Captain Edlin of the Rembrandt has notified the owners of the ship that he had reason to believe the vessel was fired by German spies who were members of the crew.

WAR IS DECLARED

NO CHANGE IN PROGRAM

Naval Appropriations Will Not Be Increased, Says President

There will be no increase in the naval appropriations for the coming year, President Wilson stated. None has been recommended by the secretary of the navy.

The state department appropriation will be necessarily larger, owing to the added expenses caused by the war, but there has been no change in the naval program as outlined by administration officials more than a year ago.

A Suggestive Move

A straw which shows which way the wind is blowing is to be found in the announcement that the Brazilian Steamship Company has withdrawn its fleet of seven vessels from the coastwise trade of South America and, until further notice, they will ply between Brazilian ports and New York.

It is evident that the heads of the Brazilian Steamship Company are long and that they are equipped with eyes to see and ears to hear. They have not hesitated, because they have sensed the obvious and are getting ready to take advantage of the enormous carrying trade which must shortly be done between this port and our neighbors on the other side of the Equator.

Because most of the goods used in South America have heretofore been bought in Europe and carried in European vessels, it was natural that there would be little profit to a Brazilian company outside a coast trade. But now the change has come and the Brazilians know, and we know, that America must furnish the necessities and luxuries previously purchased on the other side of the ocean. They know, further, that the United States has few facilities in the way of shipping. They therefore prepare to meet the demand for vessels. It will be easy to export when goods are ready, and the time to get ready to ship, as the New York Commercial has said time and again, is now. Meantime get American vessels ready. There is need for them.—New York Commercial.

Belgian Relief

How the appeals do multiply! And most of them are abundantly justified. Last week the Townsman had a word to say about the Belgian relief, but only a very small part of the story was told.

Associated with Mrs. Towle in the collection of this fund is Mrs. A. P. Thompson of School Street, and if those in Andover who are able to give, could get the full significance of some of the messages that have come to her from her sister engaged in the relief work in little Holland, there would be a great, big, generous response from the Andover people. Just one brief quotation may perhaps help. Under date of October 14, this message is sent to Mrs. Thompson from her Holland sister:

"Since last Thursday 500,000 Belgian refugees have come over the frontier, besides 37,000 Belgian and English soldiers. To get a roof over all these people is a gigantic task. They live in many factories, and churches, and even in camps. The various elements make it still harder, for we get all the prisoners from the jails in Antwerp, and one whole insane asylum."

Six days later the incoming multitude had increased to 600,000, and how we all share in the expression that accompanies that message:

"I am full of admiration for the Dutch who have opened hearts, homes, and purses, and are doing all they can to accomplish the gigantic task of caring for this multitude. We have literally divided everything we have."

A lot of people, and very properly, are feeling very strongly that it is quite possible that business conditions in New England may make serious calls upon public-spirited people in the coming winter months that ought to be considered at the time when these appeals from foreign countries are coming. Already many people are denying themselves many of the things they are accustomed to have, because of lessened dividends and lessened incomes, but we cannot help feeling there is tremendous force in the appeal such as the above, for a little more self-denial, and for a little greater generosity than we have yet shown in this very serious stress felt by the people abroad. All of us share in that expression of admiration for that little country of Holland which has placed upon it, the enormous task of relieving the distress of hundreds of thousands of people in this serious time. It won't take much from those who are able, for Andover to do a great, big, generous part, and it is peculiarly fitting that they should do so where among those who are deeply interested are near relatives of people in Andover whose leadership is so often followed at such times.

Collections for this work at the National Bank, the Bookstore, and the Metropolitan will be forwarded under the direction of Mrs. Towle and Mrs. Thompson to Mrs. Thompson's sister in Holland, Mrs. Van der Zee. Cannot they be made big, because of many separate littles?

Observed Silver Wedding

Nearly one hundred people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Temple, Highland road, on Wednesday evening to bring their good wishes to this popular couple on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The house was attractively decorated for the occasion with palms and chrysanthemums, and the pretty gowns of some of the guests added touches of color, making it a most festive scene. The Adelphi orchestra furnished music for the young people who enjoyed dancing, and Caterer Page of Lowell served dainty refreshments to the guests. An array of varied and beautiful gifts of silver testified to the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Temple are held. They were married in Chatham twenty-five years ago, and had lived in Reading twelve years before coming to Andover, but have resided in this town for a number of years and are well known.

Mr. Temple is general manager of the Merrimack Paper Co. of Lawrence, and a successful business man. They have six children, four daughters and two sons. The best wishes of hosts of friends go with them for many more years of happy wedded life.

ABBOTT VILLAGE NOTES

Editorial Cinders

The serious hoof and mouth disease has not yet appeared in Andover so far as any official recognition of it is concerned. Nevertheless Andover must stand for the various regulations which have been made, which make it pretty difficult for any exchange of cows, and make it impossible for dealers to bring from outside the state, any of the various animals that may be affected. Cows have never been so costly as at the present time, and this epidemic, disturbing normal conditions, cannot but serve to make the price of milk, the price of beef, and the price of all of the things that are associated with the dairy, go to still higher figures. We don't get very far on this problem of reducing the high cost of living, and the amusing efforts made by certain reformers to fix such things by law, or by boycott, or in any one of many other ways followed by that class of people, would seem to have still greater field in which to work on account of present tendencies. When hens lay many eggs, the price will be lower than when they lay few eggs. Just at present with the average about an egg a day to ten hens, the natural result follows of sixty to seventy cents a dozen for fresh-laid eggs. Supply and demand are frequently looked upon as an economic question. In the case of the eggs, it is entirely a hen question.

We don't wish anybody any such ill luck as is frequently associated with a good rain-pour, and inasmuch as tomorrow is to be such a big day for Andover, we hope the rain will keep off until after seven o'clock tomorrow night. But, oh, how we do need it! What a pleasure it would be to have it come for the next four days after that, filling our rivers and ponds and streams, as they have not been for three months. Those who are familiar with conditions at Haggett's, say that never in their memory has that pond been as low as it is now, the pond being over two feet lower than its normal condition at this time of year. The "oldest inhabitant" never remembers such conditions, and everybody is willing to believe the statements made that not for ninety years has there been such a dry spell as that which marks the last three months in this section of New England.

In the mails of this week are to be found the regular annual story of the Guild as set forth in the annual report and in the appeal for the necessary funds to carry on the work for the coming year. What more is there to be said about it? This work has become such an important feature of the life of the town that it calls for support with just as much force as can now be attached to the annual local tax bill or church dues. While many unusual calls may make it seem as if there was a pretty constant drain on the generosity of those who are able to give, nothing could be more short-sighted and unfortunate than to have the regular "good works" of the town suffer because of the extraordinary appeals. All it means is a little more self-denial and a little broader sympathy.

Petition to Reduce Fares

To the Public Service Commission, Commonwealth of Massachusetts: The undersigned respectfully represent that the Bay State Street Railway Co. make an unfair discrimination against Andover passengers in the matter of transfers between Reading Square and the Reading Station of the Boston & Maine Railroad, a distance of 29-100ths of a mile, that is to say, passengers bound for North Reading via North Reading Junction, taking the street car at Reading Depot are carried for five cents while passengers destined for Andover are obliged to pay 10 cents to North Reading Junction. Similarly in the opposite direction passengers from Andover are obliged to pay 10 cents from North Reading Junction to Reading Depot, while the passengers from North Reading are carried for five cents.

Therefore your petitioners pray that after a hearing thereon your Board shall determine that all passengers, regardless of their residence or final destination, shall be carried between North Reading Junction and Reading Depot for five cents and order same to be in effect.

In connection with the above petition George Abbot, Selectman, Harry M. Eames, Representative, Samuel H. Bailey, and Miss Emma J. Lincoln appeared before the Public Service Commission yesterday morning and were given a hearing. Vice-President Robert S. Goff and Attorney James F. Jackson, representing the Bay State Street Railway Company, contended that the custom allowing a 5-cent fare within the boundaries of one city or town required that North Reading passengers be given transfers at Reading square to the Reading station.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

All Day Session of the Women's Baptist Societies of Merrimack Valley at Baptist Church. Large Attendance and Stirring Addresses

The annual basket meeting of the Women's Baptist Foreign Missionary Societies of the Merrimack Valley was held in the local Baptist church at an all-day session on Wednesday.

The meeting was opened at 10.30 a.m. by a devotional service led by Mrs. Lombard, who made a few remarks about the first foreign missionary, Adoniram Judson, and his "shining face," an inspiration to many of his followers. She said that she wished more of the Christians of the world could bear that shining face, being as it was a reflected radiance of the Master's countenance.

Mrs. Kate Blanchard then welcomed the ladies with a few appropriate remarks, after which the business of the day was brought up. The roll call of the different circles was held and short reports were given of the work done by these circles during the year.

Mrs. Mary S. Jackson sang a beautiful solo, "Let Not the World," accompanied by Frederic G. Moore on the organ, after which the roll call was completed.

The "Challenge to Prayer," a very appropriate appeal for prayers for the peace of nations, was read by Mrs. E. D. Webber of Haverhill. At this juncture it was announced that the speaker of the morning, Mrs. Tuxbury, had not arrived, and Miss Grace Colburn, State Vice-President, spoke on the literature that is to be had which gives in detail addresses and data of interest to the mission circles. She made an eloquent appeal for funds for relief work of the foreign missionaries.

The reports from the Farther Lights were then read and approved and the morning session closed with the hymn "Fling Out the Banner."

Luncheon was served at the noon hour and opportunity for sight-seeing was given at this time.

The afternoon session was opened with a short devotional service led by Mrs. C. E. Colby of Lawrence.

Mrs. Tuxbury, who was unable to attend the morning session, gave an inspiring talk on Japan. She spoke of work in Osaka, the Bible training school, Sunday Schools, of which she has twelve, clubs for boys and girls, young women, the mothers, the cooking classes, the influence of song and playground. The only way to reach the women, she said, is through trained Bible women. She had three, and could use ten, and each costs but $7.50 per month. There are always opportunities for service in this line.

Rev. H. E. Safford from Burma, spoke on the "Relation of Circles to Circumference," that this relation of a mission circle to its church, the circumference, was very important, its very life in fact. People and churches grow when interested in missions. The relation is equally binding on each person, for all are equally near some part of the circumference. Each can touch some life that no one else can. Opportunity always means obligation, and men, women and children are included in the opportunity afforded by the circumference of the mission circles.

Mrs. H. G. Safford, secretary of the foreign work, Boston, told many interesting incidents of her round-the-world Judson centennial trip, confining herself, however, to India and China, the people and customs, the native religion and beliefs and practices. The horrors of Hinduism cannot be described, but the missionary part of India is wonderfully fascinating, and a great deal has been accomplished by the soldiers of the Cross.

Rev. William E. Lombard pronounced the benediction and brought to a close a very successful and interesting meeting.

CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS

J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., Addresses
A Large Gathering of Men at Free Church

At the regular monthly meeting of the Free Church Men's Club held last Tuesday evening in the vestry, J. Randolph Coolidge, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, spoke most instructively and entertainingly on the subject of "Class Consciousness." The parish house was filled with members of the club and they had as guests the men of the South Church Men's Club.

Mr. Coolidge said that the subject of Class Consciousness was a timely and present topic of vivid interest to those who were mainly Anglo-Saxons. Yet the Anglo-Saxon was not so intensely class conscious as those of some other races. Class consciousness was the outcome of family ties, which were strongest in the rural communities. The feeling of a man for his village is merely an enlargement of his interest in his family and it is but natural that he should place a higher value on his village than he does the outside world.

In Massachusetts one-third of the population is foreign born or of foreign parentage and we have not yet made ourselves sufficiently acquainted with these people. We fail to appreciate the perfect naturalness of those who have come from other countries to cling to the ideals of the land of their birth even although showing loyalty to the land of their adoption. Their thoughts of the country from which they have come is a form of class consciousness not consistent with the desire to benefit themselves in the land of their adoption.

The Grange was a form of class consciousness. Originally intended to promote agriculture, it had wandered from such good intentions and was now more of a social and political organization. He mentioned the recent action of the National Institute of Architects, of which he was a member, in raising their prices without even consulting the public. He said that that body did not promise any better work but they wanted more money and got it. They, too, got away from the real object; but agriculturalists and professional men were not the only class. Labor unions

HARVEST SUPPERS SUCCESS

Ladies Aid Society of West Church Clears Over $200 and the Benevolent Society of the Free Church Also Entertains Large Crowd

Harvest Supper at the Free Church

Last Friday evening the annual harvest supper of the Free church was held in the supper room by the Ladies' Benevolent Society, followed at eight o'clock by an entertainment in the vestry.

Nearly 250 persons sat down at 6.30 to an appetizing supper prepared by the solicitation of the ladies among the different homes in the parish and served in a most pleasing way by a corps of efficient waiters. The tables had been attractively arranged by Miss Florence Parker, little apple trees decorating each festive board, and a regular harvest scene was exemplified on one table, consisting of a miniature orchard surrounded by a stone wall and in which little cheery-faced men picked the fruit-laden trees. Piles of ruddy apples, a ladder, and even a dog barking at the foot of it made a most realistic picture.

The menu consisted of baked beans, cold ham, vegetable salad, rolls, pies of all kinds, cake, coffee and tea, and there was an abundance of everything.

At eight o'clock in the parish house an entertainment was presented which was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. A short play entitled "The Gentle Jury" created much amusement. The fair "jurymen" were Mrs. Henry Russell, Mrs. Joshua Paine, Mrs. David May, Mrs. James Gillespie, Mrs. William Faulkner, Mrs. David S. Lindsay, Mrs. Donald Laurie, Miss Alice S. Coutts, Miss Bertha Higgins, Miss Laura Spence, Miss Anne Gillen, Miss Gladys Higgins, sheriff, Edward Lawson. A short musical program was rendered by Miss Mira B. Wilson, violin, who played in a most finished manner the Spanish dance by Moszkowski and for an encore Swiegenspark, with Mrs. Frederick A. Wilson as accompanist, while Mrs. Geo. F. Peck sang very pleasingly "In May Time" and "Slumber, Mamma's Little Baby." After the "jury" had come to a decision and the curtain fell, Mrs. Peck sang another solo and Miss Wilson closed the evening's entertainment by a violin selection.

The success of the affair was made possible by the efficient committee consisting of Mrs. Milo H. Gould, Mrs. Thomas Peters and Mrs. George A. Carter, assisted by Mrs. George A. Christie, Mrs. James Dole, Mrs. William Gorrie, Milo H. Gould, George A. Carter and David May. The corps of waitresses and waiters comprised Mrs. Geo. A. Carter in charge, Misses Mary W. Scott, Margaret Collins, Sarah Woodhead, Hazel Stiles, Gladys Napier, Mary Caldwell, Margaret McGrath, Isabella Ramsay, Marion Fraser, Helen Swanton, Isabel Peters, Gladys Higgins; and Robert Christie, James Coates, Alfred Coates, David Gillespie, Wendell Kydd, Chester Morse, Norman McLeish, Lewis Paine. Cashier, Mrs. E. C. Edmonds.

Fair at West Church

A most successful supper and sale was given on Friday evening by the ladies of the West church, and their utmost hopes were realized in the way of patronage, the hall being crowded all the evening.

The supper was famously good, as all West Parish suppers are, and consisted of turkey with all the fixings, and oysters for those who cared for them. The waitresses were Misses Luella Phelps, Ebba Petersen, Elizabeth Doyle, and Dora Ward. After all had been served, the rest of the food was sold and a generous sum realized.

When the inner man had been filled the different tables offering a host of good things both useful and ornamental attracted the eyes and the pocketbooks of the gathering. Everything went and in a couple of hours the tables were as bare of their different articles as if they had been swept by a broom. All had words of praise for the pretty decorations which were uniformly red and green in anticipation of Christmas, and the children had much fun over the grab-bag, a goose which talked when five cents was deposited and brought forth offerings wonderful to behold. In all it was the success of the year.

The following committees were in charge of the various tables:

Fancywork—Mrs. Paddock, Mrs. W. B. Corliss, Miss Anna Chase, and Mrs. F. H. Hardy.

Apron table—Mrs. Noyes, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Greenwood.

Fancy apron table—Mrs. Huggins. Candy table—Miss Rebecca Kydd, Marion Abbott, Marjorie Morrill, Bernice Boutwell.

Children's table and grab-bag in charge of Mrs. Newman Matthews, and the members of her Sunday School class, assisted by Mrs. Winthrop Boutwell.

Vegetable table—Geo. M. Carter, Edward Hardy, W. B. Corliss.

Supper committee—Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Burt, Mrs. Lewis.

TO MERGE ASSOCIATIONS

Village Improvement Society Votes to Take Over Indian Ridge Reservation. Address by Rev. M. W. Stackpole

The annual meeting of the Andover Village Improvement Society was held in the lower town hall on Monday evening, about sixty members being present. The meeting was called to order by Professor Charles H. Forbes, the president, and the minutes of the last meeting read by the secretary, Miss Lincoln, and approved by the members. Next came the secretary's annual report, which is given in full below. This report was accepted and adopted, after which the treasurer gave his report which was also placed on file.

The business regarding the acceptance of the Indian Ridge Woodland was brought before the meeting and after a few remarks by Professor Forbes, who thought that the trust ought to be accepted, the question was favorably voted upon. The consent of the State must now be obtained for the merging of the two organizations.

The nominating committee presented the names of the officers for the coming year, and they were unanimously accepted. The officers are as follows:

President, Prof. Charles H. Forbes; vice-presidents, William A. Trow, Rev. F. A. Wilson, J. D. Fairweather; secretary, Miss Emma J. Lincoln; treasurer, John C. Angus; directors: George Abbott, Mrs. Bernard M. Allen, Cecil K. Bancroft, Mrs. N. E. Bartlett, Henry A. Bodwell, Mrs. Frank T. Carlton, Miss Jane B. Carpenter, Herbert F. Chase, Burton S. Flagg, Mrs. William G. Goldsmith, Miss Agnes Park, Miss Kate A. Swift, Mrs. C. E. Abbott, Miss Emily Sprague, Miss Lucy B. Abbott.

The president then closed the business part of the meeting by saying a few words relative to the work that the A. V. I. S. is doing, has done, and will do, and urged each member present to add at least one more name to the roll. He said that the purpose of the organization was to make the townspeople more intelligent about town affairs and said that it was surprising how much could be done with each fifty cents, the annual membership fee. Larger funds meant larger things in the way of a more beautiful town and the more members the greater spirit of fellowship and co-operation. Every citizen of Andover ought to be a member.

Rev. Markham W. Stackpole was then introduced as the speaker of the evening and he gave a very interesting account of English villages and their surroundings. He first read extracts from a paper that was read to him by his father when he was a little boy, regarding the improvement of a certain town by its townspeople. The article was much the same in its purport as the desires of the Andover Improvement Society and gave helpful suggestions about the care of the town. Every man who helps make an attractive village makes more valuable his own as well as his neighbor's property. It advocated simple rural beauty, not aping the city styles of architecture and ornament, but the training of the natural beauty of which the town abounded. The paper suggested the cooperation of the villagers, in closing, and made an ardent plea for suggestions and stimulus.

Mr. Stackpole then came to his main topic, "English Villages," and gave graphic descriptions of the English rural scenery. He spent three months in the model city of Bournemouth, two months at Oxford, and two at Radlett. In this way he had a chance to visit the surrounding villages and note their picturesqueness. The climate in England is more conducive to the luxuriant growth of shrubbery than is our country's and they have no heavy freezing to destroy the gardens as we have here. The English trees are freer from pests than our own forest growth and they are taken better care of. The people who live in the villages take pride in their gardens and hedgerows and love to live in their homes the year round, not being given to long holidays away from their own little plots of ground. The English love of outdoor life is noticed everywhere, the tennis courts and other playgrounds being a part of the scheme of things. The love of gardens is inherited, dating back to Saxon times.

The one thing Mr. Stackpole objected to was the fact that the gardens were mostly enclosed by stone walls, high and forbidding, and only occasional glimpses could be had of the beauty-spots within.

He told of the English love and reverence for things old and beautiful and said that the climax of the toleration which the people had for the suffragettes was reached when the mad women began to burn the old churches.

He spoke of the English railways as being kept much better than ours, the few grade crossings now in existence being carefully guarded. The roads are very well kept, men being at work all the time fixing holes and grading.

The village houses themselves are inferior in every way to those in this country. Being built of stone or brick and in many cases having thatched roofs, the interiors are often damp and cold and lack the modern convenience of even our smaller cottages. But whatever the houses were, and whether they were ill or well kept, the parish churches were always interesting spots because of

Guild Notes

It surely will be interesting to some to know what has been doing at the Guild this first month. Between the Red Cross sewers in the day time and the classes in the evening, the Guild equipment has been well used.
From the first it was evident that the question was not how to make the Guild attractive to the boys and girls of Andover but how should the Guild meet their demands. This condition came not so much from the increased numbers as from the greater interest and confidence of the old members.
This has been a month of beginnings, organization of classes and clubs, and a settling down into a happy regularity of work and play. The membership has increased about 30 over last year, the number of classes and clubs increased by 12.

The following weekly schedule of classes speaks for itself:

MONDAY

4.00 p.m.—Junior cooking.
7.30 p.m.—Inter cooking, senior sewing.
7.30 to 10.00 p.m.—Senior and Junior boys' gymnasium and basketball.

TUESDAY

3.00 p.m.—Mothers' sewing club.
4.00 p.m.—Junior cooking.
7.45 p.m.—Girls' basketball club.
8.15 p.m.—Girls' basketball practice.

WEDNESDAY

8.00 p.m.—Sloyd.
8.00 p.m.—Commercial Class.
7.30 p.m.—Inter Sewing.

THURSDAY

4.00 p.m.—Friendship club.
7.00 p.m.—Senior sloyd.
7.30 p.m.—Mothers' sewing club.
7.30 p.m.—Junior gymnasium and basketball.
8.00 p.m.—Senior cooking.
8.30 p.m.—Senior gymnasium and basketball.
8.30 p.m.—Junior sloyd.

FRIDAY

4.00 p.m.—Junior girls' gymnasium.
7.30 p.m.—Inter girls' gymnasium and basketball.
8.30 p.m.—Inter club. "K. T."

SATURDAY

10 a.m.—Junior sewing.
8.00 p.m.—Weekly social.
Monday, Thursday and Saturday nights, bowling.

All these classes are well filled, some having already reached their limit, and are instructed by very efficient teachers who are already popular with the members. The Girls' basketball club is very fortunate and happy in the possession of a half-hour of Mrs. E. V. French's time each Tuesday evening, when she gives them practical talks on personal hygiene, health and kindred topics.
The new intermediate department has met with a very enthusiastic response, seventeen young girls joining readily and at once forming themselves into a club. They have their own sewing, cooking and gymnasium classes which they attend with much evident pleasure.
The junior department is thriving as usual with its four cooking classes meeting fortnightly, its very large sewing class and gymnasium class, both of which have had to be divided to obtain better results.
Visitors are welcome to any of these classes.
The following figures are interesting: Membership—boys 78, girls 133; total 211.
Classes: Boys' gymnasium 69, sloyd 32, girls' gymnasium 86, sewing 99, cooking 81, boys' and girls' commercial 28. Total enrolled in boys' classes, 121; total enrolled in girls' classes, 274; total enrollment in classes, 395.

The average weekly attendance is over 400.
Acknowledgement is here made of all magazines, books and games which have been received this month from several friends.

The Sunday Hour begins next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock when Mrs. Douglas Crawford will meet the senior and intermediate girls.

The Rummage Sale is booked for November 21 and all articles for it may be sent to the Guild any time.

Company L, Eighth Regiment,
M. V. M.

The Company has just received the new Olive Drab overcoats from the State Arsenal. These coats are exactly the same in every detail as issued to the Regular Army.

The new marching shoe has also arrived and is to be issued to the men shortly.

Col. Graves, commanding the Eighth Regiment has issued an order calling for the examination of all the officers in the regiment; setting the 18th of December for the officers of this company.

Sergeant Harry J. Pond, U. S. A., who has been on duty as Sergeant-Instructor to this regiment for the past two years has been ordered to report back to his regiment, the 23rd Infantry, now stationed on the Mexican border. He was well known and very popular with the men of this company and will always be kindly remembered.

The preliminary drill to the Military Levee to be held in the Lawrence Armory on December 3rd, of the 3rd Battalion, which includes Companies F, L, K, and M, will take place at the Cambridge Mass. Armory on November 24th. This company will take down a good representation.

Of the four applicants that took the physical examination for enlistment with the Company only the following two were successful in passing: Samuel Holroyd, 187 Lowell street, Methuen, and H. T. Tremblay, Broadway, Lawrence.

Company F, Ninth Regiment Infantry, M. V. M.

The regular weekly drill of the Company was held Tuesday evening at the State Armory with an exceptionally good attendance. The Company was under command of Capt. J. J. Sullivan. A company meeting was held after the drill for the transaction of important business.

The Musicians' school for the Company, also for Company M of Lowell of the same battalion and regiment was held at the State Armory Saturday evening last under the direction of Lieut. Canty. Lieut. Canty is Second Lieut. of Company E, Ninth Regiment, but has been detailed by the Commander-in-Chief as Instructor to the Mass. Volunteer Militia in bugle practice.

The new olive-drab overcoats, marching shoes and identification tags have been received and will be issued to the men shortly.

Corporals McNulty and Hawkins have been appointed to act on the Military Publicity Committee in conjunction with Company L, and Battery C.

A vigorous following up of the enlisted men who fail to attend the weekly drills or who do not show a reasonable cause for non-attendance will be carried out by the Officers this winter.

acutely accentuated class consciousness and he spoke on their efforts to benefit themselves by eliminating as far as possible the open shop or free worker, arguing that to insure success they needed and must have the largest possible membership in every trade. The unions, however, were not primarily organized to raise the standard of workmanship, unfortunately, and were more busily engaged in establishing a scale of wages and securing better working conditions. They were constantly asking for more and were successful in getting better wages and shorter hours of labor. Nevertheless the greatest advance labor unions could make and one which they demand of their leaders and not always recognized was that they should take a view of conditions from the standpoint of the employees themselves. Nor can the capitalist system of its own accord do full justice to the laboring class. Their attempts are well enough meant, but welfare work is not the equivalent of wages. There should be an understanding by each employer and employee of the conditions of business, the profits made, the production expected, the competition which the employer must meet and when these are mutually understood the labor union would know how far the wage scale was justified. There is no inherent beneficence in capitalism. It is just as natural and reasonable for a body of wage earners to employ capital as it is for capitalists to hire employees to work out their ends.

The experience of co-operation of distribution is not nearly as good here as it is in England. One fifth of the retail business of the United Kingdom is the business of co-operative stores. These stores are managed by the men who own them, men who are of ordinary intelligence, but are paid no fancy salaries and often not more than an ordinary day's wage. There should be more of this co-operation in our country and if a community of wage earners can manage successfully co-operative stores there is a strong argument that they could manage co-operative factories. Labor organizations have been severely criticised because they have tended to put able men on a level with the average worker and under average men. The efficiency of labor would be promoted and encouraged to be a system of profit sharing and Mr. Coolidge cited the United Steel Corporation as example of increased efficiency among its employees by this means.

Class consciousness also manifested itself in politics, particularly where religion was introduced. No religious belief is banned in this country but no set of believers had any claim to political power or domination as a set, and jealousy and suspicion was immediately aroused if any religious organization assumed such power or attempted control. Political views had obscured the object aimed at, namely, good judgment.

In closing Mr. Coolidge spoke of class consciousness as a national feeling. National feeling had different aspects in different places. The plea of my country right or wrong had never led us to the oppression of weaker nations. Neither had we denied the right of self government to those who were gifted to govern themselves. The national feeling in this country was a respect and sympathy for smaller nations. There was no desire on the part of this country, which could not be truthfully said of another nation, to force its standards to be accepted by the world, by persuasion if possible, by force if necessary. He deplored the great war and was sure that out of it might would triumph over reason and justice. Here in America good sense and good feeling were happily blended, willing and glad to let others live alongside of us.

Mr. Coolidge's address was listened to with great interest and at the close refreshments were served and a social held. Readings were given by John MacDonald and William MacEwan rendered solos.

President Charles B. Baldwin announced the program for the balance of the year: January, South America, by Rev. William G. Poor; February, Mexico; March, Woman's Suffrage; April, Employers' Liability Act, discussed by a representative of the State Industrial Board. The committee in charge of the meeting consisted of Thomas Thin, Samuel R. Harris and John Elder.

A Day of Blood and Fire and Its Results

The gunners have given the people of Massachusetts a lesson and now the gunners themselves are likely to get theirs.

In 1912 the Great and General Court of Massachusetts passed an act changing the date of the beginning of the open season on upland game to October 12—three days earlier than formerly. This was done at the solicitation of large numbers of gunners that the season might open on Columbus Day which has been made a holiday. The change was strongly opposed by sportsmen, game protectionists and bird protectors, but all opposition was futile.

Let us see how the change has worked out to the advantage of the gunners. Last Columbus Day was the beginning of the first open season pheasants that Massachusetts has had for some years. Practically all the hunters were out on Columbus Day. For about forty-five days the weather had been fine nearly all the time and the woods were as dry as tinder. Weather sharps say there has not been such a dry fall for about ninety years.

The game wardens were so few that they were of no consequence. Had the open season begun on some other day than a holiday they might have controlled the slaughter in a measure, but as one of them said—"You can control a small brook and you might do something with a river, but you can't control a flood." Think of it! 60,000 men! Sixty full regiments, licensed to kill and turned loose on Massachusetts in one day, besides the farmers, boys and the unlicensed horde. A rough estimate of the damage caused is $20,000 to $30,000.

The next day the Governor issued a proclamation closing the hunting season. It was time! Now, since rain has fallen, the open season is on again. But the most remarkable effect of this day of "blood and fire" is that farmers and land owners are posting their land. The Board of Agriculture, the Fish and Game Protective Association and the Audubon Societies have been flooded with requests for posters, and land owners are organizing to cooperate in patrolling their lands. A movement already is on foot to do away with the opening of the season on Columbus Day. All real sportsmen will favor this. Another movement is gaining headway to ask the Legislature to declare a closed season for five years on all game. It looks as if the gunners have rather overreached themselves. The people will not always stand such abuse of gunning privileges and surely will find means somehow to restrict them.

There's joy in the heart o' me,
Peg o' my heart,
'Tis the rare Irish part o' me,
Peg o' my heart;
Night, sweet with dreams of thee,
Day's music seems of thee,
The moon tells her beams of thee,
Peg o' my heart.

I, too, am a child with thee,
Peg o' my heart,
God has been mild with me,
Peg o' my heart;
The birds' sweetest melody
Chimes with the knell o' thee,
Hours while I tell of thee,
Peg o' my heart.

—Henry B. Tierney

Just like Reverend Henry B. Tierney's poem, there's always just the suspicion of a tear lurking in the happy laughter of Florence Martin in her delightful interpretation of "Peg" in Oliver Morosco's Celtic comedy, "Peg o' My Heart," now nearing its hundredth performance at the Cort theatre.

HOLLIS STREET

Boston has gone wild over Lydia Lopokova! Every night at the Hollis Street theatre there is witnessed the extraordinary circumstance of several curtain calls after the last act, to say nothing of the dozen or more that always follow the two preceding acts.

The cast is admirable. Kate Mayhew, as a cook who is struggling in the deep waters of "society," would rout the worst case of blues in the world, and other fine performances are contributed by Eleanor Gordon, that great Boston favorite, Olive Temple, Malcolm Duncan, who plays the manly young lover to the star, Thomas V. Emory. Aldrich Bowker, France Bendtsen, and Arvid Paulson.

As the curtain rises at 8.15 in the evenings and at 2.15 at the matinees, Wednesday and Saturday, falling at 10.30 and 4.30 respectively, the attraction is an ideal one for suburban playgoers. The week of November 16 will be the final one of the engagement, which it has been found impossible to extend.

WILBUR

William Hodge has scored a triumph seldom achieved by actors who have made one immense hit. He has followed his signal success of "The Man from Home" with another hit equally as brilliant and delightful. "The Road to Happiness," in which he has scored his latest footlight achievement as young Jim Whitman, is now in its eleventh week at the Wilbur theatre, Boston, and capacity audiences are enjoying both him and his comedy of "cheerfulness" with uproarious laughter and enthusiastic applause. The fact is that Mr. Hodge stands alone in his peculiar line of parts. He has a unique personality that exactly fits the distinctive American types. One critic has declared of him that "he is as American as the circus or baseball," and another has said that "upon Hodge has descended the mantle of Denham Thompson, Sol Smith Russell and James A. Herne." "The Road to Happiness," like Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," has for its central dramatic motive the mystery of a baby founding. Its four acts are all laid in a typical village and afford the best pictures of American home life on the stage today. Many enjoyable village characters are also depicted to the life.

OPEN LETTER from the hand of Robert J. Orr, well-known and popular Real Estate operator, 40 Maplewood Avenue, Pittsfield, Mass.

ASTONISHING CURE OF A PROMINENT MAN who when skating, fell and suffered a most unusual dislocation of the hip bone which produced increase of length of limb six inches. Cured by Dr. Sweet after all eminent surgeons had failed.

To the Invalid Public:

During the year of 1878 my brother Edward W. Orr, suffered a most serious injury while skating on glacial ice. He suddenly fell separating his limbs in opposite directions, which produced a most unusual effect on the ligaments of the hips. They were stretched to that extent that the hip bone became dislocated from its cavity, producing no less than an extension of six inches additional length to the leg. It will be perceived by skillful surgeons that this was a most unusual injury. Physicians by the score were consulted. No help at hand. I was prevailed upon to take my brother to Dr. Sweet the distinguished Natural Bone-setter and Specialist, who was then stopping at the Cooley House in Springfield. He cured him after all else failed, and he is now a living witness of Dr. Sweet's great skill, and is in Montana in the cattle business. (The truth of the foregoing will be verified by addressing the subscriber).

OPEN LETTER from estimable lady, daughter of John Tracey, Esq., Manufacturer, Middlefield, Mass.

A MOST IMPORTANT CURE OF PARALYSIS AND NEURASTHENIA by the world famous Natural Bone-setter and Specialist in Chronic Diseases, after being pronounced incurable and that she could not live.

From One of Our Grateful Patients:

About 12 years ago, I fell a victim to a serious general weakness of the nervous system, called I believe by the doctors, Neurasthenia, which confined me to my bed for many weeks, when I was importuned to go to the House of Mercy Hospital, where I stayed no less than 17 weeks. Great discouragement was my portion; but little if any hope of betterment was promised me. "You can't live a year" was the encouraging remark of the chief surgeon. A visit from my father, John Tracey, Middlefield, caused me to be taken to my home where I remained for months under a doctor's care without any benefit.

And now comes the end but encouraging sequel. For seven years and more I was unable to take a single step. I was filled with despair. A life lived as a paralytic broke my heart and filled my friends with foreboding. A medical Journal of the wonderful cures of Dr. Sweet was directed, I believe, by kind Providence to my habitation. A new faith sprang up within me and I acted at once. I dispatched a hasty messenger to see him. An interview speedily followed and a thorough and careful examination of my spine was made, which when done, Dr. Sweet at once announced "I can cure this lady; she will walk with a little assistance in three months, and in six months she shall walk wholly unaided." It is now ten years since this wonderful cure was performed, and now through the wonderful blessing of God and the skill of Dr. Sweet, I am walking as well as I ever did in my life.

OPEN LETTER of wife of well-known Locomotive Engineer, fast express to Boston, Mr. H. L. Merritt.

FOR FOUR YEARS A HOPELESS CRIPPLE

Case of Aggravated Rheumatism and enlargement of the joints.

To the Invalid Public:

About four years ago the joints of body, hands and limbs became seriously enlarged and sensitive. The lameness and enlargement of the joints seemed to increase, which occasioned me much concern. Hearing of Dr. Sweet's arrival in Pittsfield, and knowing of the reputation of the family lameness, my husband advised me to consult him, at once, which I did. Less than three months have elapsed since I began treatment. With regard to my improvement I am pleased to say that this has been most satisfactory and my treatment most thorough. Invalids suffering from lameness upon application to Dr. Sweet's Sanitarium will find a wide difference between the modes employed there and those of office practice.

Woodville, Mass.

Dr. Sweet—Dear Sir—Your wonderful rescue of myself from absolutely certain death now some five years since, and the absolutely perfect health I have enjoyed ever since have urged me almost daily to proffer you my testimony that when made fully public may be the means of saving some fellow mortal from an early death. It is more than ten years since I began to run down. At length my condition became so serious that I flew from one physician to another—gaining no help but receiving most discouraging opinions from all. I was a perfect wreck. Doctors and others said I could not live but a few weeks at most. The humor of my stomach troubled me so that for months I subsisted on this gruel: even a particle of solid food entering my stomach would seem to set it on fire.

I had been reduced to the condition of a walking skeleton and despairing of all hope when I resolved to consult Dr. O. Preston Sweet. Instantly and for the first time, I was told just what ailed me. I felt I stood in the presence of the great natural healer. I returned home to consult with my father, filled with new and vital hope. I returned with my father; he likewise beheld in the doctor's healing powers new life for me. We both saw and believed. At once we purchased a twenty-month course of treatment and straightway entered upon the course. What shall I say today? I am well and during the past five years have been able—thanks to Dr. Sweet—to build up a large agricultural implement business, wholly unaided, all of which, together with the happiness of health, I owe to Dr. Sweet. To the unwavering attention of Dr. Sweet's attendants and to the courtesy of his family, I wish to record my grateful thanks. Invalids may write me with perfect freedom, as I cannot say too much for Dr. Sweet.

Merrimack Valley Past Noble Grands' association will meet in Elks' Hall, corner Essex and Appleton streets, Lawrence, today, November 13, at 2 p.m.

Wednesday evening at the Forest street Union church a meeting of men was held for the purpose of organizing a men's club.

The season for hunting game birds, squirrels, etc., came to an end Thursday of this week. An attempt to have the season lengthened by the Governor because of the fact that part of it was suspended has been unavailing.

Richard Harris, an old and well-known resident of this town, is quite ill at his home on Lowell street. For several years past Mr. Harris has conducted a boat house near the bridge which crosses the Spicket river on Lowell St.

A building is being removed from Anis street to the Arlington Heights district. The removal of it necessitates the changing of cars on Broadway. At the corner of Oakland avenue it necessitates the cutting of the wires to permit its passage under them.

Hon. Archie N. Frost of Lawrence, formerly U. S. attorney, who has been in charge of the Indian land fraud cases in Oklahoma, is to be the speaker at the next meeting of the men's club of the Congregational church next Monday night at Phillips chapel.

A meeting of interest not only to members of Methuen Grange, P. of H., but to others, was held at Odd Fellows Hall on Thursday night, under the auspices of the American Agricultural Chemical Company gave an address on "Grasses and Alfalfa." The meeting was open to the general public and a large number availed themselves of this most excellent opportunity to become better acquainted with the fine points of the subject.

Joseph Benecrese appeared before the Methuen police court Tuesday charged with threatening to shoot Joseph H. Benecrese, a fellow countryman of Pleasant Valley, on Sunday afternoon. It seems the complainant was digging a ditch for a waterpipe from his premises to the street and the defendant objected to his going out to connect with a pipe which connected with his land, and as a result threatened to shoot him, as alleged. Two first offenders were each fined $1 for being drunk.

Obituary

GEORGE A. METCALF

George C. Metcalf died last Monday at the Lawrence City Hospital, after over a year's illness, at the age of fifty-nine years.

The deceased was born in New Hampshire, but had resided for the past twenty years in Ballardvale. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. William Miller, and one son, Raymond Metcalf, to mourn his loss.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from his late home. Rev. Augustus H. Fuller officiated. The floral tributes were very beautiful, among them being the following: A floral pillow, inscribed "Father," from the family; spray of chrysanthemums, from the neighbors; spray of white chrysanthemums, Mr. and Mrs. William Miller and family; spray of pinks, Harry Evans; spray of pinks, Berdie and Flossie Evans; spray of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Davis. Interment was in the family lot in the Edson cemetery, Lowell.

Ladies' Aid Fair

There was a large attendance at the annual fair of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society held in Bradlee hall on Wednesday evening. The several tables presented a very attractive appearance and were in charge of the following persons:

Thanksgiving—Mrs. Mary F. Brown, Mrs. William Clemons; fancy—Mrs. Amos B. Loomer, Mrs. Nellie Hinchcliffe, Mrs. N. E. Mears; apron—Mrs. N. S. Harwood, Mrs. Joseph Shaw, Mrs. C. F. Parker; candy—Mrs. Frank Juhlmann, Mrs. Edward Hall; peanut—Miss Annie McGhie, Miss Thelma Wanamaker; ice cream—Frank Petty, Geo. Bruce, Fred Buckley, Leroy Mott.

The entertainment was varied and novel and each number on the program was well rendered and drew forth round upon round of applause from the large audience present. The entertainment was given by the Boston Juvenile Players, under the able direction of Mrs. Alice L. Glover. The program follows:

Opening chorus, "Little Oriental Maid"; character song, "Maybe It's a Robber"; pantomime, "A Quaker Meeting"; recitation, "The Diary of a Real Boy"; dance Americans, sailors' hornpipe; sketch, "A Knight of Old"; Irish song, with a jig (folk dances), "When I Dream of Old Erin"; Scotch fold dance, Highland fling; recitation, "Sh-sh-sh"; closing chorus, "Rush, Here Comes the Dream Man".

The fair was a complete success and netted a good sum for the society treasury.

their beauty and age. Most of them dated back several hundred years and the people of the villages took pride in their churches and their surroundings. The working people everywhere are trained to keep up their villages and little garden plots and this is what makes of England a beautiful country to visit.

After Mr. Stackpole had ended his talk a social hour with light refreshments followed in which the members had an opportunity to look over the views Mr. Stackpole had so kindly brought down for inspection. A pleasant and profitable evening was spent by all.

The two reports are given below.

The Secretary's Report

May I be permitted to preface my report by a quotation from one of the well-known workers for civic betterment? He says, "It is a splendid thing for a community year after year, generation after generation, to be trained in a love of decency, beauty and good taste. This one idea, it has been well said, permeating a town for many years as a principal of action, is worth more than all the fortunes gathered in that town." A strong statement surely, but, we believe, a true one.

The year just closing has been one of the busiest the A. V. I. S. has known, and I find my report lengthy in consequence.

Early in February it was decided to hold a clean-up week in Andover in the spring, and in order to rouse interest and secure cooperation, representatives from all the women's organizations were asked to meet with a committee from our Society to talk over plans.

The week of April 18-25 was chosen as clean-up week, and much advertising of the plan was given in the local papers. The school children helped by making posters which were prominently displayed.

At our request the Board of Public Works agreed to cooperate in the work by permitting the town teams to make a house to house collection of rubbish, but after the work was begun, the town's counsel decided that as no money had been appropriated for this specific purpose, the work could not legally be done by them. An appeal for funds was made through the columns of the Townsman which was responded to by several of our public-spirited men and women, $50 being pledged for the work which was later carried out by teams from private parties.

Andover received such a cleaning as never before, and the benefit was so marked that it is hoped that a sufficient appropriation to cover this necessary bit of municipal housekeeping may be made at the annual town meeting, and the work extended to cover the collection of ashes as well.

A portion of our appropriation was used to clean up dumps in various places by the roadside, which had become a disgrace.

At the town meeting last March the Society petitioned for an appropriation of $200 from the town for the improvement and care of The Boulders, to be expended under our care. Because the legality of such an appropriation was doubted, the money was voted to the use of the Board of Public Works, working with our Society. Later, at their request, we presented a statement outlining the work proposed to this Board, and received their permission to go to work.

Going over the whole territory was disheartening, and the sum which could be used for improvement (about three-fourths of the appropriation) was small, as nothing had been done during many years to repair the ravages of time, which had wrought especial havoc to the Essex street end and the point directly opposite, at the corner of School and Ridge streets. At Essex street, portions of the ledge projected, like ugly tusks, at awkward angles, and the character of the rock was such, and its disintegration so rapid, that nothing could be induced to grow about it. Years ago Mr. Goldsmith tried, by forming pockets of mellow soil, to make ferns and vines grow about the base of this ledge, planting many with his own hands, as he later did at The Ledges, but it was of no avail.

One of our young business men tells of the surprising change there since his boyhood, caused by erosion. The removal of some portions of this ledge seemed imperative if we were to improve conditions at this point. To prevent leaving unsightly scarred rocks, more was removed than was at first planned, but the result from the standpoint of the landscape artist and the beauty-lover justified this action. We were able to secure a sloping bank which was covered with loam and sodded.

Some regrading was needed on other portions of the park and where the outcropping ledge made the care of the place difficult, small rock-points were removed; the path which provides a short cut to the station was improved by steps of flat stones. Rounded field stones were used to continue and complete the line of division between the park and the sidewalk on the southwestern side, where the face wall stopped abruptly, loam was supplied at places which were badly gullied, shrubs were severely cut back and some new ones were planted. On the steep bank opposite the entrance to the railroad station two dozen plants of Hall's honeysuckle were placed. This climber-creep is nearly evergreen and will be pegged down to eventually make a carpet over this steep portion of the park which is now cared for with great difficulty.

Stone steps were also put in near the southern end, where a short cross-cut had been worn. We hoped to plant vines around the large boulders which give the place its distinctive name, and add other features, but felt that further expenditure might wait until another season.

In addition to the appropriation from the town the Society spent here about $15. We have gone somewhat into detail in regard to the work here because we feel that such a report is due the town whose generosity made these improvements possible. A detailed account of the expenditures will be given by the treasurer.

Work has been continued at the plot on Andover Hill, the large boulders being removed and an added portion graded, material for this work being furnished free by Phillips Academy, some of it being taken from the grounds back of the dining hall and some from a part of Brothers Field. For this generous gift we wish to express our thanks. Three-fifths of this plot has now been graded and seeded, the remaining portion being much more shallow than that recently filled. Possibly another year will see the completion of the work, which has proved a more expensive undertaking than was at first supposed. Over $100 were expended here during the year.

In December of last year we learned through the Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Bemis, that plans for the improvement of school grounds might be secured through Amherst Agricultural College experts at an expenditure only for travelling expenses and board in Andover.

As we had often discussed the need of such improvement, we felt that the time was opportune, and arrangements were made to have the expert and his assistant come later. As a result of this visit we have planting plans for all the school grounds in town, and a plan in detail for one of the district schools. Some of these we hope to be able to use in the near future.

The Flower Show was particularly beautiful this year, our committee working faithfully for its success.

In the leaflet containing a list of the prizes offered we printed a list of the books upon flower culture, landscape art, vegetable and fruit raising, and books on the farm in general which are in our public library, and this resulted in their more general circulation.

The care of Manse Green, The Ledges, Upland Green and Marland Village Triangle calls for about $50 from our funds each year; although no one of them is large, all are important in the development of the town. In an effort to interest the children in the protection of birds, prizes were offered last December for the best bird houses made by any child in town, either at home or as a part of their work in manual training. Spurred by this offer, a number of boys worked under Mr. Lunt and produced some very creditable work. The names of the prize-winners were announced in the local papers, and need not be repeated.

We hope this winter to rouse interest among the older mechanics in making and placing feeding-frames for the birds.

In April our president asked, through the Townsman, for suggestions in relation to our own work, or that complaints in regard to "existing omissions, neglect and evils" together with some feasible remedy, be sent to our "complaint committee"; and promised all possible help in bringing such matters before the proper officials, and to do whatever our own resources would permit to further any good plan.

Apparently Andover people are pretty well satisfied with existing conditions, or have little faith in our power to remedy them, for few suggestions have been received. However, some friends have been glancing about with more critical eyes and have given us the result of these observations.

In some cases a remedy for a condition has been found; others are not yet settled, but we are still open to suggestion, and believe that this one feature of our work might be made of the greatest value.

In response to one "suggestion" we have petitioned the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts for the privilege of free transfers on the electric cars from the square in Reading to the railroad station and the same in returning.

Our petition was signed by the Selectmen of Andover and by the secretary for the Society, and a hearing will probably be granted soon.

This is by no means our first attempt to set right a most unjust discrimination.

Early in the season, Mrs. Charles E. Abbott, who had served faithfully as treasurer for many years, because of illness in her family and the pressure of other duties, felt obliged to resign from this office, to our deep regret. Mrs. Abbott worked for years at an uncongenial task because of the interest she felt in the objects for which this Society stands, and deserves the grateful thanks of the community. Mr. John C. Angus kindly consented to serve for the remainder of the unexpired term and was appointed treasurer by the board of directors.

We are to vote tonight whether we are willing to accept the care of Indian Ridge Woodland and the funds controlled by the Indian Ridge Association as proposed by the trustees.

It has been obvious for some time that some such provision must be made before many years. The Association now has invested a permanent fund of $1750, and a working fund of $194. The interest from the permanent fund will hardly care for the property and provide for re-foresting where needed and our treasury may be called upon for additional support, but the proposition presents an opportunity and a duty to which there seems but one answer.

We are interested in the development of Elm square, and if agreeable to the town officials the Society stands ready to furnish an expert landscape architect, from the firm of Olmstead Brothers, who would advise in regard to its laying out; an expense which the town might not care to assume.

It would seem that only a person who is accustomed to look upon all sides of such a problem could consider it from the standpoint of utility, convenience and beauty. Mr. Blossom, the expert to whom reference has been made, was called to Stockbridge, Mass., in 1913, by the Village Improvement Society, to advise in regard to the improvement of the town, although Stockbridge has for more than a quarter of a century been called the most beautiful town in the land. In a report which was later printed for distribution, he told them where trees should be cut, and why; where they should be planted; where masses of foliage should be grouped; where branches should be cut away to obtain a vista; where a wall should be lowered, etc., etc., giving the reasons for all changes so that the layman could understand his point of view. We believe that similar advice would be invaluable here in Andover.

We have received from the Burns Club which recently disbanded, a share of the funds remaining in their treasury, for which we wish to express our thanks.

We would also thank all who have in any way aided us in our work during the year, especially making our acknowledgment to the Townsman and the Telegram for publicity.

To carry out our plans we need that our membership should be doubled, and we invite all who are interested in the work for which the Society stands to join with us in helping to make a more beautiful town.

For the Directors,
 EMMA J. LINCOLN,
 Secretary

Wedding

PERRY-RICHARDSON

The wedding of Miss Ethel Florence Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson of this town, and Percival Davis Perry of Dover, Maine, was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents on Whittier street at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick A. Wilson of the Free church in the presence of the immediate families only, using the elaborate double-ring service. The couple were unattended except by the ring-bearer, Russell Richardson, and four flower girls, Hazel, Ethel, Cora and Margaret Richardson. A cousin, Miss Bernice Barnard of Melrose, played the wedding march.

The bride was attired in a plum-colored travelling suit with hat to match, and carried white chrysanthemums.

The house was artistically decorated with autumn leaves and ferns, with vases of roses and carnations giving a finishing touch. After the ceremony a short reception was held and the happy couple left for a short wedding trip. They will be at home after January 1, in Dover, Maine.

Barn Party

A most enjoyable time was held in the spacious barn of the Foster farm on Tuesday evening when the young people of the C. E. Society of the South church gathered for a good time and a husking-bee.

At eight o'clock between twenty and thirty people had gathered to enjoy themselves, and enjoy themselves they did for a good two hours.

The barn floor was just right for all the "new" dancing steps and the old barn-dance itself was much in favor. After all had indulged in this pastime the company sat down to husk the corn and, incidentally, to pick out the lucky red ears. These were numerous and caused a deal of fun, one young man especially being fortunate in securing numerous trophies of this sort. Games were played and refreshments of doughnuts and cocoa served, and a most enjoyable evening spent by all.

Civics Class

The next meeting of the class in Civics will be held in the lower Town hall on Tuesday, November 17, at 4 o'clock. The first lecture given November 3, by Dr. Adolph Berle was on "The Origin of the State." At the commencement of his talk he spoke of the need of intelligent understanding of public affairs. There are 20,000 women in the middle west taking the same course, that they may understand the factors that make for public welfare. Dr. Berle spoke of our public institutions which are utterly unable to cope with the problems before them, and the need of intelligent forethought in their founding. "New England today has problems never before thought of in the civilized world" said Dr. Berle, "with constantly changing industrial conditions. With an ever-growing foreign population and with the evils of overcrowding, it is impossible to live longer as our forefathers did." The forms of government — autocracy, aristocracy, plutocracy, democracy, and oligarchy were all explained, and examples of each discussed at length. Dr. Berle dwelt particularly on the relation of government to the home.

The class in Andover will meet every second Tuesday. Prof. Wilson and Prof. Bell will aid Dr. Berle in the instruction. The work of the New England Civics Institute is well known and the course promises to be intensely interesting.

At the regular meeting of the Andover United football club held in Abbott Village hall it was decided to stop using the Andover Guild House, which the team has had the use of this season, and to return to the Village hall.

A large number of the players have insured against injury while playing, with a Boston insurance company, which issues a policy for Soccer players. The team which will line up against the Champion Beverly club this week is: J. Deyermund; Rae and Downs; Coleman, Black and Rennie; Cairnie, W. Deyermund, Page, Doig and Skea.

Good Cooks in Demand

"I've had my daughters learn to cook so that they might get better husbands." "And did they?" "No, they feel above marrying now."

We have just received, direct from the Manufacturer, a full line of sheets and pillow cases, made from the Fruit of the Loom, Oakland and Hill cotton.
